A summary of the academic discipline:

The structure of the obligatory module "Political Science" is of a systemic nature, includes four interrelated levels of consideration of issues of political science and ideology. The first level - theoretical and methodological - theory, history, methodology of politics and ideology. The second level - the dynamics of political and ideological processes - represents the "procedural level" of considering the issues of interaction between politics and ideology. The third level of interrelation between political science and ideology of the Belarusian state - "State institutions and ideological processes" - is devoted directly to the centers of making political and ideological decisions. The fourth level, instrumental, includes the mechanisms for the implementation of the state and ideological course
