Brief content of the academic discipline:

The structure of the educational discipline "Social psychology" has a systemic nature and is represented by the following sections: "Introduction to social psychology", "Social psychology of a Person", "Interpersonal communication and interpersonal relations", "Group psychology", "Social behavior". The first section introduces the subject, purpose, objectives and methods of social psychology, the main stages of its development as a science. The second section includes the problem of personality in the social world; the relationship of behavior to the motivation and social attitudes of the individual. The third section is dedicated to various aspects of interpersonal communication and interpersonal relations; familiarization with the concept of conflict, its structure, dynamics and strategies of personality behavior in a conflict situation. Within the framework of the fourth section socio-psychological features of the social group, group phenomena and processes, as well as the regularities of personality behavior in the group are considered. The fifth section introduces different types of human social behavior.
