

Academic discipline:
"Fundamentals of public administration"

Code and name of specialty	1-23 01 15 Social communication
Training course	3
Semester of training	6
Number of class hours:	52
Lectures	26
Seminar classes	26
Practical exercises	-
Laboratory classes	-
Form of intermediate assessment (credit/differential credit/exam)	credit
Number of credits	3
Competencies to be formed	To know the latest approaches to the analysis of public administration and politics as mutually dependent types of political activity; the most important indicators of the public administration and politics effectiveness; goals and objectives of the country internal policy.

Summary of the content of the academic discipline:

"Fundamentals of Public Administration" is an academic discipline aimed at developing modern knowledge about the theory and practice of public administration, local government and self-government, the experience of formation and functioning of various state bodies, local government and self-government in Belarus and other countries, as well as skills and abilities to identify and analyze modern problems and trends in the development of public administration and to make management decisions adequate to the prevailing conditions. The theoretical orientation of the course is combined with the analysis of real political and state relations based on the analytical methods of modern political science. During seminars and academic assignments, students acquire skills in the practical application of management methods and technologies.